Clear The Way For Tax Boost

Congress to Act Late in Year or First of Next on Excess Profits

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—A compromise pledge that Congress will act later to tax excess war profits apparently cleared the way today for approval of a $4,508,000,000 tax boost and the start of a vacation for lawmakers late this week.

But it may mean that Congress will be back in November.

Agreement on the knotty corporation excess profits issue was reached at an unusual Sunday session of a House-Senate conference committee.

The conferees, now smoothing out differences in the House and Senate versions of the general tax bill, approved subject to House and Senate approval—that Congress will act either later this year, or early next, on a levy on excess corporation profits. This levy is to be retroactive to Oct. 1 or July 1 of this year.

This is intended to postpone the profits issue and enable quick, final approval of the general tax boosting bill in time for higher levies to become effective Oct. 1 on the incomes of more than $50,000 individual taxpayers.

Agreement Reached
The Senate had gone on record as favoring action on an excess profits tax next year. But the House overwhelmingly called for action this year. The conferees agreed on a compromise which calls for enactment of such a tax if Congress is in session after the November elections — otherwise, next year.

But Senators Connally (D-Texas) and O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), leaders in the fight for immediate excess profits legislation, said they will insist on a definite understanding that the lawmakers return after the elections to act on the matter.

The tax bill is one of the major items in the way of congressional recess or adjournment this week. Its major provisions:

Individuals—A $2,700,000,000 increase in levies on incomes of over 50,000,000 persons, effective Oct. 1. On that date the withholding from wages and salaries, after personal exemptions, will go up for most taxpayers by one-fifth.

Corporations—An increase of $1,500,000,000 a year in normal corporation income taxes, to apply to one-half of 1950 income.

The measure embodies numerous other provisions, many of them dealing with the plugging of tax law loopholes.

Some Smoothing Out
Some of these provisions still must be smoothed out by the House-Senate conference committee. Because of their technical aspects this might require a day or two more of work, and some members say it may be Saturday before both the Senate and House approve the compromise bill.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Finance committee announced after yesterday's session of the conference committee that the staff of tax experts employed by Congress has been instructed to begin immediate preparation of an excess profits tax.

This may impose a $4,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 a year levy on big profits.

George said the bill will be ready for Congress to act in November, if it is in session. Otherwise, he said, Congress will act in 1951. In any event the pledge of the conferees requires that the levy be retroactive to some of 1950 corporation income.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means committee, where all tax bills originate, said that under the circumstances he doesn't think it "terribly important" whether a bill is acted upon this year or next, since there is now agreement that it shall be made retroactive.

Guardsmen Off For Alabama

Columbia, Fulton, Jefferson City And Moberly Units

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 18.—(P)—Four units of the 175th Military Police, Missouri National Guard, left here today for Camp Rucker, Ala., where the battalion was ordered for training. It entered the federal service last Monday.

The battalion includes Headquarters and Headquarters Company of Columbia, Company A of Jefferson City, Company B of Fulton, and Company C of Moberly.

A 14-car special train carried the battalion, whose 225 officers and men entraining from here were joined by 78 members of Moberly's Company C at Centralia.

Lt. Col. Bernard A. Schmitz, principal of Hickman high school here, is commander of the unit. The departure was preceded by a parade in which the guardsmen passed in review before Brig. Gen. John A. Harris, adjutant general of Missouri.

As the military police unit left the local armory, its place was taken by members of the 816th Field Artillery, organized reserves, which were activated today and is to report to Camp Rucker, Ala., before October 1. The field artillery unit has headquarters and two firing batteries here, a firing battery in Jefferson City and a service unit in Fayette.

Company C Leaves
MOBERLY, Mo., Sept. 18.—(P)—Moberly's National Guard Company, C of the 175th Military Police Battalion, left today for Camp Rucker, Ala.

At Centralia the special was to join other units of the battalion, which was called into federal service last month. They were headquarters and headquarters company of Columbia, company A of Jefferson City, and company B of Fulton.

The company marched to the Washburn station, followed by about 600 relatives and friends. There was no formal ceremony. Merchants boarded the train before it left distributing farewell gifts.

Except for the agony of leaving the men seemed glad to be on the move. For the past week they had been on active duty, attending drills, lectures and packing equipment.

The company was organized March 14, 1949. Many veterans had joined up. More than one family man had figured into the household budget the extra money he'd draw by attending the weekly drills.

Nearly all walks of life were represented—a plumber, a college professor, a shoe salesman, a truck driver, the city treasurer, a locomotive fireman, and a sports editor.

Not Advised Of Peace Move

London Reports North Koreans Seek to Negotiate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—The State department said today there have been no known peace overtures from the North Korean Communists.

Reporters were told by Press Officer Lincoln White that the department has "absolutely nothing to confirm" a London report published in an Italian newspaper that feelers have been made.

White said the normal channel for proposals for a settlement would be the United Nations. He said although the North Korean Communist regime is not a U.N. member, it has "representatives" in the U.N. He named them as Russia's Jacob Malik and Andrei Vishinsky.

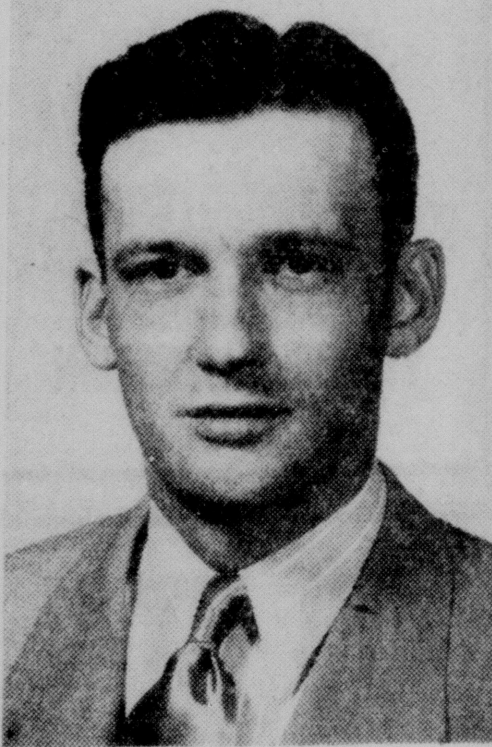

Report From London
ROME, Sept. 18.—(P)—Rome's independent Giornale d'Italia said today in a London dispatch that North Korean authorities are seeking to negotiate for peace.

The dispatch attributed the information to non-official Indian circles at London and said it came from New Delhi. According to it China and India would serve as mediators.

Giornale described the dispatch as its own special service. There was no confirmation from any other source.

Civil Defense Plan For U.S. Is Evolved

Expect to Cut In Half Possible Casualties

By Douglas B. Cornell

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—The government unwrapped today a master civil defense plan telling states and cities that home front casualties can be cut in half with trained experts an millions of volunteers.

President Truman approved the plan, which lacked and price tag or timetable. Along with a bill to create a new, separate Federal Civil Defense Administration, Mr. Truman sent it to a Congress which probably will do nothing about authority or money for the program before next year.

The program is built around:

1. Cooperation on a big scale between federal, state and local governments, with each sharing some of the responsibility and expense. There is an outline for the kind of organization needed at every level.

2. Proving pre-attack precautions and post-attack help mainly for some 140 "critical target areas"—cities and installations an enemy almost certainly would hit first and hardest. Yet "all communities should anticipate some form of attack" and prepare accordingly.

3. Mutual aid pacts among cities and states, even reaching a hand across the borders to Mexican and Canadian neighbors. "It is suggested that, as a rough rule of thumbs, cities within a 20-mile radius of a probable target city be asked to consider mutual aid arrangements for committing up to one-third of their resources as initial reinforcements by pre-arranged plan in the event of attack."

4. Mobile civil defense teams that could speed to stricken cities, even in another state.

5. Establishing government schools to turn out civil defense experts as the British are doing.

6. Bringing civil defense eventually down to the individual—"every person should know what he must do in an emergency."

To Consider Report
Mr. Truman suggested in a message that Congress "consider this report carefully over the next few weeks" as a basis for passing legislation "in the near future."

"I believe," he said, "this report presents a sound and workable outline of the civil defense problem."

This home they have sold to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyssel, and Mrs. Schaad and children will go to Kansas City, which was Dr. and Mrs. Schaad's home before they came to Sedalia in February, 1948. He then took over the dental office of the late Dr. B. E. Broadus.

Dr. Schaad has sold his practice, and will be succeeded in his office in the Ilgenfritz building here, by Dr. J. Briggs Rice, of Kansas City. Dr. and Mrs. Rice have two children, Mary, aged about 14, and Jimmy, about nine.

Mr. Boyssel, who bought the Schaad home, is affiliated with the Garst Drive-In.

Truman Signs Bill For Post To Marshall

Also Signs One For Bradley as Five Star General

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—President Truman signed today the bill allowing Gen. George C. Marshall to become Secretary of Defense. The White House said Marshall's formal nomination to the post would be sent to the Senate for confirmation at once.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Marshall has asked that he be sworn into office at the Pentagon without any special ceremony. He can't take the oath, of course, until the Senate approves him or before Louis Johnson steps out as defense secretary tomorrow.

Ross said Mr. Truman also signed a bill authorizing him to appoint Gen. Omar N. Bradley to the permanent five star rank of general of the Army.

It took a special law to make Marshall eligible for the defense post because of a ban in the Armed Forces Unification Act. This act says no one who has been a commissioned officer in the military services within the past 10 years can be defense secretary. Congress made an exception in Marshall's case.

Bill For Getting Up Home Guards

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—The house today completed congressional action on a bill to help the states set up home guards while their national guard forces are on federal duty.

The measure, previously passed by the senate, now goes to the White House.

It calls for the federal government to supply small arms, ammunition and uniforms to the home guard units.

Shout at MacArthur In Visit to Front

WITH GEN. MACARTHUR ON THE INCHON FRONT, Korea, Sept. 17.—(P)—"Don't let him get hurt," a Marine shouted today when Gen. MacArthur visited the fighting front east of Inchon.

"Is that him?" other Leathernecks asked as MacArthur's jeep passed along the road.

"Hey," shouted another jokingly, "the war's this way!"

MacArthur spent more than three hours on the tour of the battlefield where he and his staff were briefed by Marine officers.

Crackdown to Be Tough on Communists

Conferees in Agreement on Terms Of Stiff Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—A Senate-House conference committee agreed today on terms of a bill to crack down on Communists.

The group, led by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), described the measure as "even tougher in some respects" than bills previously passed by both the Senate and House, and woven together by the conferees in this compromise bill.

The bill now goes to the House, which plans to consider it Wednesday, and then to the Senate. President Truman has declined to say whether he would sign or veto the measure but has promised a quick decision.

It was reported in advance that the compromise retains a Senate provision for internment of subversives in certain emergencies.

Another principal feature, not in substantial dispute because it was common to both the House and Senate measures, would require the registration of Communists and Communist-front organizations.

The legislation also would bar Communists from federal jobs or work in defense plants, outlaw conspiracies to set up foreign-controlled dictatorships, give the government new legal weapons to deal with spies and saboteurs and tighten the immigration barriers against subversive aliens.

To House First

The final version agreed on by the conferees will be sent to the House for action first and then will go to the Senate. Sponsors hope to get it through both branches on Wednesday.

Legislators are uncertain about what President Truman will do with the bill when it reaches him, but there is wide belief that if he vetoes it the veto would be overridden.

The registration part of the bill is similar to — but not identical with — the old Mundt-Nixon bill which the House passed during the 80th Congress and which Mr. Truman has denounced as a threat to civil liberties.

Shortly before the Senate passed its anti-Communist bill — a catch-all measure introduced by McCarran — Mr. Truman took another slap at the Mundt-Nixon bill and said the McCarran bill was a little worse. He said he would not sign it.

But that was before the Senate added to it a provision for the internment of Communists or potential spies and saboteurs in time of war, invasion or insurrection.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois suddenly seized the lead in attaching it to McCarran's bill after it became apparent that the internment plan had no chance as a rival substitute.

At his news conference last week, Mr. Truman said he would decide what to do with the bill and he has had a chance to analyze it.

Lucas reportedly has been urging the President to sign the measure. Some other administration Senators who voted for the measure, despite their attacks on the original McCarran bill, are known to hope that he will do so.

Korean Situation At a Glance

By the Associated Press

INCHON BEACHHEAD: The Marines reach Han river north-west of Seoul, drive within sight of Communist-held South Korea capital. Liberation of Seoul seems imminent. Marines hold Kimpo airfield. U. S. Seventh division rolls ashore at Inchon and heads for front with armor and heavy weapons.

PUSAN BEACHHEAD: U. S. Second division throws bridgehead across Nakdong river, as the Reds dig in. To the north, Allies apparently prepare for offensive drive in Taegu sector. U. S. 25th division advances on southwest front, and South Korean troops push ahead along northern rim.

AIR WAR: Forty B-29s plaster Red positions across Nakdong river west of Taegu with 1,600 quarter-ton bombs, apparently in preparation for new allied offensive. Fighter-bombers and the carrier-based navy fighters smash at Red troops, tanks and transport on both beachhead fronts.

Look For Kill In House on Curb For Aid

Cannon Declares An Amendment Brings Confusion

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—Administration leaders today looked to the house to kill a proposal for shutting off economic aid to countries which sell military supplies to Communist countries.

This plan, sponsored by Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), was passed as a senate amendment to a $17,000,000,000 emergency appropriation bill to expand U. S. military power and help arm friendly nations abroad.

Over the week-end, house members of a senate-house conference committee declined to accept the amendment. They insisted on taking it back to the house for a vote, expected Wednesday.

Rep. Cannon (D-Mo.), chairman of the house appropriations committee, told a reporter he is against the senate provision and probably will urge the house to reject it. He said it would be almost impossible to administer.

Paul Hoffman, head of the economic cooperation administration (ECA) has come out against the provision.

In a letter to Cannon he said: "The amendment would create problems for us and for the European countries."

Strategic Materials
In an earlier letter to Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) he said the western European countries are getting through normal eastern European trade channels, a number of strategic materials like copper, bauxite, iron, steel, coal, timber, and food.

Senator Wherry said he is confident the house will approve the amendment.

War Absentee Ballots Here

War Absentee ballots are now available for those men and women who are now in the service. Already two requests for such ballots have been received by county clerk James Green and the ballots have been forwarded.

They are Lloyd A. Moon, U. S. Navy, 922 East Fifth street, and Frank M. Urban, midshipman, 1507 East Seventh street, who is at Annapolis.

The regular absentee ballot will be ready for those persons who will be away from Sedalia or the county on election day, sometime in October.

County Clerk Green explained the War Ballot can be requested by either the person in the service or by his or her parents. Other absentee ballots must be requested by the voter desiring to vote.

It is not necessary for the voter to be in the state on election day. A voter can receive a ballot regardless of where he or she is.

The ballot request can be made as late as 6:00 o'clock the night before the election and the ballots must be in the office of the county clerk not later than the following day after election.

Orders Given to Make Red Koreans 'Die or Surrender'

WITH U. S. SECOND DIVISION, Korea, Sept. 18.—(P)—Units of the U. S. Second Division captured 38 North Korean nurses today.

It was the largest number of enemy service women seized in one day since the Korean war began.

By Leif Erickson

TOKYO, Sept. 18.—(P)—American Marines stabbed to within three miles of Seoul today at the head of 40,000 massing Allied troops ordered to make the Red Koreans die or surrender.

The Leathernecks spearheaded the 10th Corps liberation force now rolling in a crushing tide on the Red-held South Korean capital. Seoul's liberation appeared to be at hand.

The Marines vanguard was about one mile from Yongsungpo, Seoul suburb on the south bank of the Han river. The allied force must cross the Han to take Seoul itself.

Fifteen miles northwest of the city, a second Marine column hurled back five pre-dawn assaults and secured Kimpo airfield. Then it drove north of the banks of the Han.

Kimpo airfield already is in operation at an allied base with an excellent paved runway.

A United Nations communique tonight said Marines were probing for crossings along the Han river on the outskirts of Seoul.

The communique said Allied casualties have been light and enemy casualties were heavy.

"The enemy has not yet recovered from the initial tactical surprise" of the Inchon beachhead landing, the communique said. It added:

"Piecemeal entry into action of various enemy fortifications has led to their complete destruction."

The number of enemy prisoners captured in the Inchon-Seoul front area is approaching 2,000, the communique said.

"North Korea defense units, in the airfield area, launched intermittent suicidal attacks, which broke under marine infantry and tank fire," the U. N. war summary stated.

"Marine flyers have landed on Kimpo airfield," the communique said.

The Marines continued their advance today after pushing forward yesterday "against scattered enemy resistance."

Official reports Sunday that Marines were fighting in the outskirts of Seoul proved premature at that time.

President Truman Has Close Personal Friendship With General Marshall

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—The close personal friendship existing between President Truman and General George Marshall—amounting almost to hero-worship—was illustrated by an incident at Leesburg, Va., some time ago when General Marshall notified the President that a former U.S. Senator, killed in the Civil War, was inappropriately buried near Marshall's home.

The late Senator was Col. Edward D. Baker of Oregon, and General Marshall informed the President that only a moss-covered stone, overgrown with vegetation, marked his grave.

The President, who was in frequent touch with General Marshall even during his retirement, telephoned Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, and suggested that since Colonel Baker was from Oregon they both go to Leesburg, visit with General Marshall, and examine the grave.

Senator Morse accepted. But before leaving, he took the trouble to ask the Library of Congress to check on the late Senator Baker, and found that although he had been killed at Ball's Bluff, Va., his body had been carried back to San Francisco and he was buried there.

Driving down to Leesburg, therefore, Senator Morse told President Truman that he was afraid General Marshall was mistaken about Senator Baker being buried at Leesburg.

The President's reaction was most interesting. "Poor General Marshall," he said. "We mustn't hurt his feelings. You leave this to me."

After lunch, as Marshall escorted the party to the supposed grave of Senator Baker, Truman finally broke the news that he wasn't buried there after all. However, Marshall, unconvinced, led them to the grave, where they found that the Library of Congress was right. The marker stated that Colonel Baker was "killed here, Oct. 21, 1861." There was no indication that he was buried there.

General Marshall apologized profusely for bringing the President and Senator Morse on the long trip for nothing. But they told him they were delighted at the excuse to get away from Washington.

MacArthur vs. Washington

It's no longer a secret that there have been important differences of opinion between General MacArthur and the joint chiefs of staff in Washington. It was to iron out some of these differences that Adm. Forrest Sherman and Gen. Joe Lawton Collins recently went to Tokyo.

One of these differences, still not ironed out, pertains to guerrilla warfare and sabotage behind enemy lines. Such tactics have been urged on General MacArthur but he has been reluctant to adopt them.

Italian sabotage behind German lines was an important factor in the Italian campaign; likewise French sabotage of the Germans after the Normandy invasion. Strategists in Washington believe that we can do the same thing in Korea, and reverse what the North Koreans have been doing to us.

So far, we have tried to break up North Korean supply lines by aerial bombing and artillery, and while this has been partly successful, the enemy continues to move up supplies by night. When the Communists take over a town, for instance, the entire community is drafted. The population is told: "Here are the supplies. Get them to the next point."

So men, women and children transport them, sometimes without even using roads, which makes bombardment difficult, and is why Washington has urged MacArthur to infiltrate South Koreans behind North Korean lines.

Under the FBI's Nose

It takes a brazen thief to steal right under the nose of the FBI. However, one was caught the other day pilfering nickels from a news vendor's box at the entrance of the FBI's offices.

The thief was caught when the FBI dyed nickels in the change box a wet green, and hid two FBI clerks behind ventilator slats in a near-by door.

After a short wait, the hidden clerks heard stealthy footsteps coming down the corridor, then the jingle of change taken from the newspaper box. All they could see from the ventilator slats, however, was a pair of dark blue pants.

So, crawling from their hiding place, they ordered all the blue-uniformed guards to report for inspection. One guard was missing. They found him in the lavatory washing green dye from his hands.

Government Should Control Red Labeling of Its Citizens

By Bruce Blossat

Gypsy Rose Lee, famous strip teaser, is the latest public figure to have a finger pointed at her as "subversive." A little while back it was Jean Muir, movie and television actress.

For some time now the country has been legitimately alarmed over the Communists in its midst. Congress at this moment is trying to work out legislation to give us protection against them. The House-approved Wood bill stresses the need to strip away false fronts and label Communists and their organizations for what they are.

Even if the government were to conduct this labeling process, as it would under the Wood bill, there'd always be great risk of besmirching innocent people and groups. That risk explains the determined opposition to the plan by many in Congress.

But if private individuals and organizations join in the labeling, the danger of hurting innocent folk is far greater. Rumor, fragments of truth, falsehood, all may be seized upon to smear a person in these frenzied times. As we all know, the original charge always catches the most newspaper space; the denial, even when it represents the real truth, is usually relegated to inside pages.

In Miss Muir's case, private individuals objected to her appearance on a TV show. They based their protests on the fact her name was included in a booklet called "Red Channels," the report of a private anti-Communist group on the alleged influence of Reds and sympathizers in Radio and TV.

Miss Muir was said to belong to several organizations listed by the government as subversive. She denied membership in some, admitted it in others, but said she nevertheless had no Communist leanings. In fact, she said she hated communism.

As for Gypsy Rose Lee, she was similarly listed by "Red Channels." This time it was the Illinois branch of the American Legion that publicly called her a "dear and close associate of traitors to this country." Miss Lee also denied the charges.

The critical facts about both these individuals can't be properly weighed without a complete and fair inquiry into their activities and thinking.

And we would like to suggest that it is not the business of Counterattack, the group which produced "Red Channels," nor of the American Legion to conduct such an investigation. Nor is it the function of any irate person who might pick up a telephone and complain to a broadcasting company.

Obviously, in these nervous days, any charge of communism can seriously affect an individual's entire future as a U.S. citizen. Miss Muir, for instance, was fired immediately from her TV job. Miss Lee may have trouble, too.

Suppose they are both completely innocent of the charges? Who in America would care to have this happen to him if he also were innocent?

Measuring the loyalty of its citizens should be a government monopoly. Any anti-Communist legislation adopted by Congress should provide machinery for the testing of that loyalty whenever and however it is called into question. A thorough, impartial study by a publicly-appointed body should be made in every such case. In each instance, the information private hands have gathered should be given quietly to the government board.

That way, innocent people will be protected from public smearing.

If they are not, then the labeling process will be destructive of the very freedoms we are trying to preserve.

Truman Apology to Marines Can't Wholly Undo Blunder

By Bruce Blossat

President Truman's blunt attack on the Marines is inaccurate and unforgivably damaging to the prestige of his office and of the United States. Seldom in history has such ill temper and bad taste been displayed publicly by a chief executive.

Even his letter of apology to General Cates of the Marines isn't satisfactory. Mr. Truman doesn't really backtrack. He doesn't undo the harm. He simply says he made an unfortunate choice of language.

He dubbed the Marines strictly a police force for the Navy and declared they have a propaganda machine "almost equal to Stalin's." At a time when the Marines are heavily engaged in fighting Stalin's North Korean minions, it's hard to imagine a more inept remark.

Mr. Truman makes the Marines sound like suppressors of irritating little incidents that unhappily crop up now and then to hamper the Navy's smooth progress forward in war. But what is the truth?

You don't have to join in any choruses of "The Halls of Montezuma" to acknowledge the great role the Marines have played in U. S. military history.

At Chateau Thierry, France, in World War I the Marines fought valiantly and were credited by many with turning the tide of battle toward victory.

In World War II, they stormed the bitterly defended beaches of Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Guam, Saipan, Iwo Jima. All were brutal engagements that cost them dearly in men. The historic seizure of the heights of Mt. Surabachi on Iwo, is emblazoned in American battle record.

The men who swarmed ashore on those islands were no police force. They were the tempered, toughened spearhead of the whole American advance across the Pacific.

Mr. Truman hasn't damaged the Marines' cause. How can you hurt men who have done these heroic deeds?

In the unification law and subsequent conferences among top leaders, the Marines' mission in any war was fixed. They are to provide combined ground and air forces for service with the fleet in seizing and defending advanced naval bases, and for conducting such land operations as may be essential to the prosecution of a naval campaign.

Nothing there about a mere "police force." Indeed, when war actually comes, the Marines inevitably find themselves going well beyond the official limit of their duties. There was no naval campaign near Chateau Thierry. The victories at Iwo and Guam and Guadalcanal were vital to the westward sweep of our regular land and air forces, not just to the Navy. Today, in Korea, the Marines are showing once more that when the fighting gets rough, they're usually in the thick of it.

Never since he took office in 1945 did the President act less like a President than when he wrote that inexcusable letter to a congressman.

Deut. 31:12; Matt. 11:29; Acts 5:20; Jer. 42:6

LISTEN, LEARN, OBEY

Since God has a plan for every life, then we must become skilled in the art of knowing and working out that plan. We have suggested that when we come to prayer we should have three attitudes: "Listen, learn, obey." Some of us listen but won't learn, and some of us learn but won't obey. The Christian is one who listens, who learns, who obeys. If he does not approach God in all three attitudes, then there will soon be nothing to listen to, or to learn, or to obey. The Voice will grow silent. To the degree that we do all three will there be something speaking.

If we do not have guidance, then it is probably withheld for one of two reasons: we are untrained, or we are unwilling. Guidance doesn't just happen. It is a result of placing oneself in the way of being guided. A radio doesn't just happen to pick up messages; it is tuned in by deliberate intention, and then it receives. Receptivity is necessary to perception—you explain life as "instrumentation." When the king complained to Joan of Arc that he never heard the voice of God, she replied, "You must listen, and then you will hear."

But many of us don't want to listen to God, for we are afraid that if God reveals His will to us it will be along the line of the disagreeable. The fact that we have changed "Thy will be done" into "Thy will be borne"—something hard and disagreeable to be borne—shows that we look on the will of God as something that mortals must accept with a sigh, like the death of a loved one.

That view of the will of God as something distasteful must be completely reversed, or we shall get nowhere with guidance. Jesus reverses that view when He says, "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me." My meat—my food. The will of God is food—food to every tissue, every brain cell, to everything that is good for us. My will is my poison when it conflicts with God's will. To real living the will of God is reinforcement, not restriction.

Forgive me, O God, that I hesitate to throw down every barrier to Thy guidance. Why should my eye be afraid of light? My stomach, pinched with hunger, afraid of food? No more should I be afraid of Thy will. I will not be. Every faculty sensitive and open to Thy suggestions, O my God! Amen.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's another in a question-and-answer series that tells how the Korean war affects reservists, veterans, draft-age men, and anyone likely to be called to service. The author, a member of the Washington staff of NEA Service, conducted a widely-read column on "Your GI Rights" in the months following World War II. He will answer questions only in this space, not by mail.)

WASHINGTON — (N E A) —

Q. A young man who is doing exactly the same thing as I do in our shop has been deferred from the draft because of the importance of his work. Does that mean I will be deferred if I get a call to active duty?

A. No. The policy of draft deferments is much more lenient than the policy of deferring reservists.

Q. We had been planning to send our son to college. But he has just received his draft notice. If we get him enrolled before the date of induction will he be deferred?

A. If you can prove to your son's draft board that you had planned to send your son to college by showing definite steps which you had taken previous to his notice, the board is instructed to defer your son for a year.

Q. My boss told me that he considers me a key employee and wants me to take steps as soon as possible to be deferred in case I get a call to active duty. Would I be smart to apply for the deferment before I get my call? Or would that just bring my name to the attention of the Army and get me called up sooner?

A. It won't do you any good to try to get a deferment before you get a call. But it won't hurt. No deferment application will be considered by the Army until after a man has had his call. It's not likely that applying beforehand, however, will inspire the Army to call you any sooner.

Q. Do I ask for a deferment from a call to active duty or should my boss write the letter?

A. Either you or your boss can apply for deferment.

Q. Is there a chance of women being drafted?

A. That's not in the law and there doesn't seem to be much sentiment for it in congress.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Ruff

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: The former Ed Frey whose marriage to Peter Flood has not been happy, is placed in charge of Frey & Company, a successful advertising agency, under terms of her father's will. The firm is threatened with the loss of the Morn-Glo soap account which would be ruinous. Meeting with Lewis Northcott, powerful advertising manager of the firm, Ed is sure the man has "something up his sleeve." Northcott admits he has been approached by representatives of other agencies who want this account.

XIII

EDIE controlled a sudden apprehensive shiver. So other agencies were sniping at the Morn-Glo account. She forced a smile. "You said you had no bad news for me."

"I said I had none—yet," Lewis Northcott corrected her. "That is true. I don't intend to turn the business over to any of these agencies simply because they've brought me some bright ideas. But the point is, they are bright ideas, very clever ones. Beyond that, they're good hard-selling advertising campaigns. So—" his voice was bland—"I'm forced to give them consideration."

"I understand," Edie said slowly. "You want to see whether under the new management, Frey & Company can match them." Northcott nodded. "Just that." Edie took her handbag from the desk and rose to her feet. "How long will you give us?"

He waved a deprecating hand. "There's no hurry. Any time within the next two or three months. But let me make one thing clear. Even if these other agencies hadn't come into the picture, I'd have wanted a new campaign for Morn-Glo. The present one is getting a little threadbare." He rose and held out his hand. "Best of luck. I'll look forward to seeing what you can do."

Edie took the hand and gave him a sudden ripping smile. "Even if you have rather put me on a spot,

Mr. Northcott," she said, "I've enjoyed this interview very much." Northcott bowed from his great height. "So have I." And he sounded as if he meant it.

IN addition to Reagan, Edie had found two other towers of strength in Frey & Company. They were Chuck Stoneham, the copy chief, and Pat Vernon who headed the art department.

Stoneham was that rare breed of copy man who is completely without aspirations outside of the advertising business. No desire to turn himself into a successful free lance writer gnawed at his brain. He did not dream of the day when he would withdraw to some ivory tower or green-and-gold island to write novels, great American or otherwise. Tall, lean, pale-faced, almost ascetic-looking, Stoneham actually considered advertising copy not as a stepping stone to something else, but as an art in itself. He was brilliant, tenacious and tireless. Before he would accept any one idea as pat for a given situation, he explored countless other ways of accomplishing the same end. In the process he drove everybody, including himself, crazy. But his final results usually justified the torture it took to get them.

Pat Vernon, almost the direct antithesis of Stoneham, was a monkeyish little man, with facile thin-fingered hands and a brown clever face that wore a perpetual grin. Whereas Stoneham was deadly serious, Vernon went out of his way to perceive and create humor. Where Stoneham comported himself with dignity, Vernon behaved like a small brown buffoon. He had a habit of perching everywhere—on desk corners, radiators, window sills. And where Stoneham regarded the advertising profession as nearly sacred, Pat

Vernon was fond of referring to it openly as "bologney." This philosophy did not seem, however to interfere with his work. He could make layouts like nobody's business. He and Stoneham were excellent foils for one another.

It was these two gentlemen, together with Dan Reagan and her brother Jeffrey, that Edie called into her office when she returned from her meeting with Lewis Northcott. She stated the issue simply. "Northcott," she said, "wants to see a new campaign for Morn-Glo."

Jeffrey went onto the defensive immediately.

"We showed him all kinds of new stuff only three weeks ago," he exclaimed. "He kept it and said he'd let me know what he thought about it. Didn't he mention it to you?"

"No," said Edie, "he didn't. He seemed to want something altogether fresh."

AS she spoke she looked at Chuck Stoneham, from whom any new campaign theme would probably spring. What she saw satisfied her. Stoneham was leaning forward, a gleam in his bright nervous eyes. He looked like a lean race horse, eager to go.

Pat Vernon grinned from his perch on the corner of the desk. "Bang goes my week-end, I suppose," he said grinning.

"Not necessarily," Edie told him. "There's no wild rush. Only all of us should be thinking about it."

Jeffrey twisted nervously in his chair. His mouth was set in a sullen expression. Edie knew what the trouble was. Jeff had already concluded that, in calling Edie to his office, Northcott had gone over his, Jeffrey's, head.

"Is that everything Northcott wanted, Miss Frey?" Reagan was asking in his powerful resonant voice. His brilliant blue eyes were on her in a penetrating stare.

"Yes," Edie didn't quite meet his eyes. "Everything."

Chuck Stoneham got up. "Well," he said, "we'll have something for you as soon as we can."

The Doctor Says—

Sciatica Cause Undiscovered, Making it a Difficult Problem

Pain in the sciatic nerve is a most distressing condition. Now, sciatica is not a single disease, and can come from any one of several different causes. For example, a neuritis of the sciatic nerve may be produced by diabetes, rheumatic conditions, or vitamin deficiency.

Infections elsewhere in the body such as an abscessed tooth or bad tonsils also may cause trouble. The aim of treatment is to identify the source of the trouble and correct it, whatever and wherever it may be.

It is claimed by some doctors that most cases of "sciatic neuritis" are caused by a hernia or rupture of the cartilage-like substance which lies between the vertebrae of the spinal column. This substance is called the nucleus pulposus. Many cases of pain in the sciatic nerve have been relieved by the surgical treatment of this rupture.

Inflammation or pressure in the neighborhood of the nerve where it comes out of the spinal canal, or even within the abdominal cavity, may extend to the nerve and cause painful sensations along its course.

The problem of sciatica is, however, often most difficult because a cause cannot be discovered at all.

In such cases it is hard to decide what treatment should be tried. Injections are sometimes used, often with good results, sometimes without. X-ray treatments and exercises, as well as manipulations and other measures called physical therapy have been successful in certain cases.

Causes Hard To Find Pain in the sciatic nerve, therefore, may come from any one of several causes which cannot always be discovered or satisfactorily treated.

Although the proportion of cases which can be successfully treated is larger now than in the past, there are still far too many who continue to suffer the pain of sciatica for long periods in spite of all that can be done for them. Too often the patient with "sciatica" is in for a rough time.

The church was decorated with two seven-branch candelabra entwined with huckleberry and two flower standards with gladioli on either side of the candelabra.

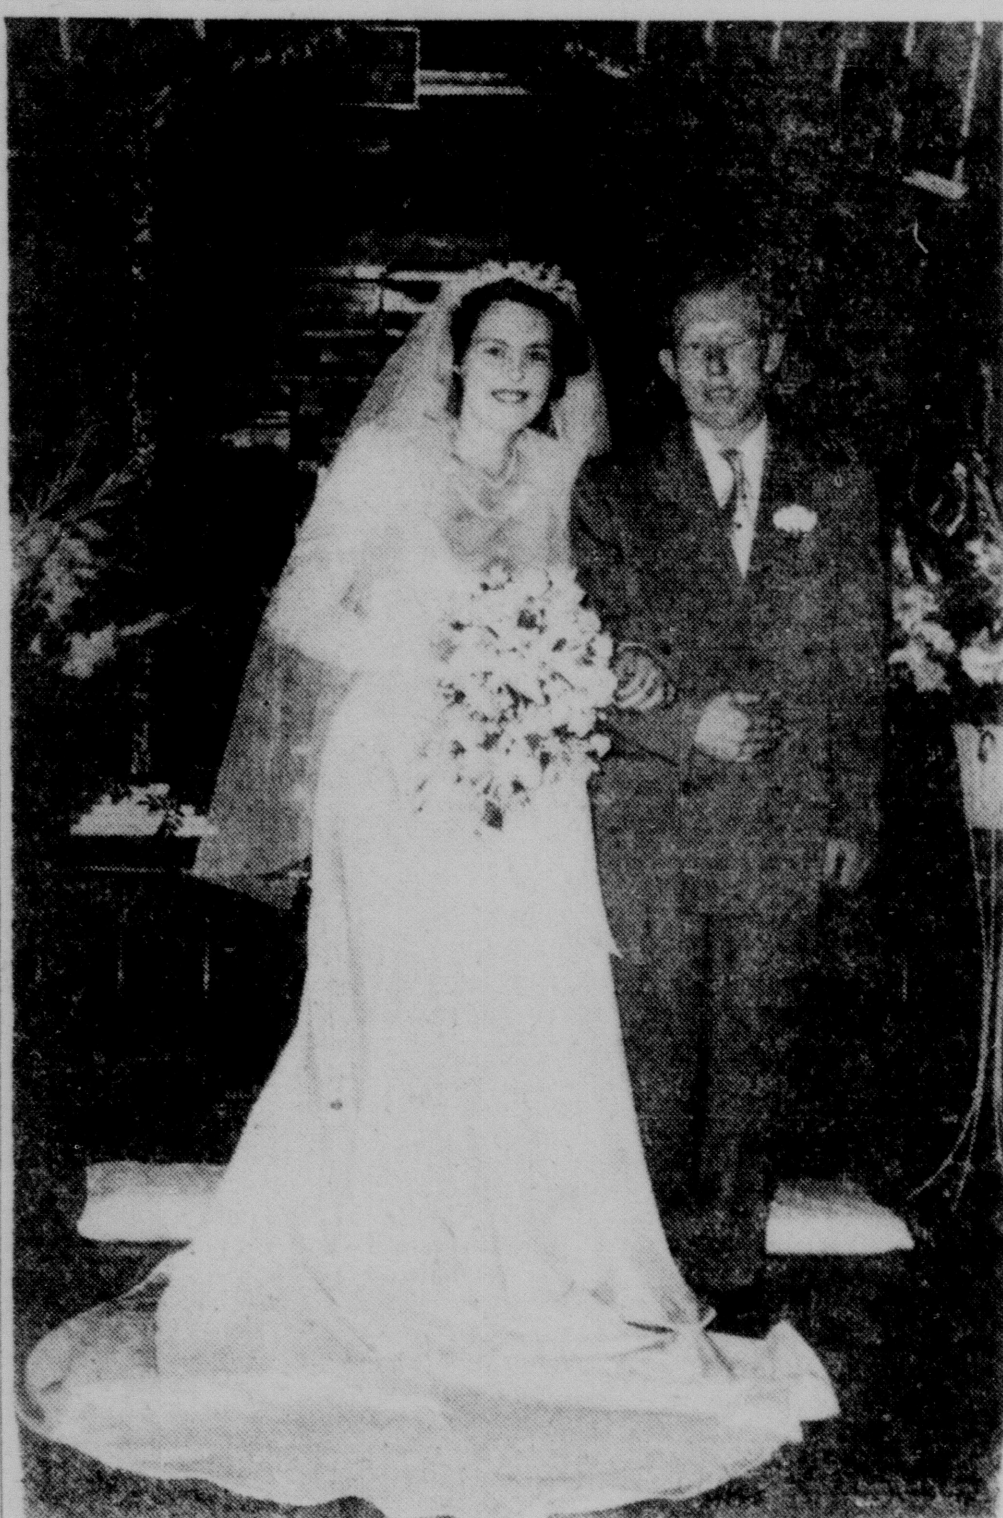

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. C. D. Demand played the traditional wedding music. Mrs. Ira White sang "I Love You Truly" by Bond, "Because" by d'Harde- lot, "The Lord's Prayer" by Mal- lotte.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin which was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline.

The sleeves were long and tapered to a point over the hand and the full skirt lengthened into an aisle wide train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a tiara of seed pearls which was a family heirloom. She carried a bouquet of white tuberoses and white roses with white satin streamers. Copies of Bible pictures from great masters will be shown at the Fifth street Methodist church at 6:30 Wednesday night by Dr. E. C. Wright, a retired member of the Nebraska Conference of the Methodist church, and now pastor of the Methodist church at La Monte.

Rev. E. C. Wright

"These pictures in colors will be of outstanding characters in the Bible and Dr. Wright will also show maps locating the places and events of importance in regular order as found from Genesis to Revelations.

This one lecture will give only the high points in a course of seven lectures compiled from the leading Bible scholars by Dr. Wright, who has given these lectures in nearly all the Central states from Wisconsin to Louisiana to Florida.

This lecture is free and is sponsored by the Men's Club of the Fifth Street Methodist church of which A. Brooks Wade is president and K. P. McCrary is program chairman.

Autos Damaged In a Collision

Considerable damage resulted to the bodies of two automobiles at Broadway and Harrison avenue at 8:40 o'clock this morning when the two vehicles were in collision. None of the occupants of the cars suffered any injuries.

The cars involved were a 1939 Ford Sedan, driven by Miss Gladys Johnson, 1523 South Ingram avenue, and a 1948 Kaiser sedan driven by Earl Steele of Syracuse.

According to the report Steele was passing when Miss Johnson started to turn left onto Harrison avenue, while both cars were traveling in a westward direction. The left front fender and rear fender on the Ford were damaged while the right front fender and both doors on the right side of the Kaiser were damaged.

lems we face, and what the federal, state and local governments should do to meet them."

The President urged that governors and mayors, who are being sent copies, "move ahead rapidly" with their own civil defense plans.

Until Congress passes permanent legislation, Mr. Truman said, he intends to establish a temporary civil defense administration to provide central leadership.

Step by Step For Start

The step by step answer to how civil defense planning should be started:

1. City forms civil defense council of officials from interested city departments, local organizations and industries. Examples: Representatives of fire department, Red Cross, power company, medical society.

2. Civil defense director picked, preferably a full-time man.

3. Council decides such policy questions as priorities in event of utility damage, what kind of attack is most likely.

4. Council divides into subcommittees; appropriate experts assigned to various services such as rescue, sanitation, evacuation, transportation, communications, health, police.

5. Check list for civil defense planning jobs worked out.

6. Available equipment, supplies and manpower checked. First draft of plans showing how each service would use available resources during a declared state of emergency, a pre-alert period, from time of alert to time of attack, immediately after attack.

7. Plans for different services coordinated.

8. Over-all plan tested in imaginary attack, in most cases a mock atom bomb raid.

9. Needs for extra equipment and manpower determined.

10. General conference for criticism and discussion, including observers from other cities and states.

11. Development of metropolitan area plan that includes mutual aid from neighboring towns.

Cost Undetermined

Nobody seems to know at the moment how much the program would cost or how long it would take to develop it to the point where America, its vital industries and its people will have the best possible chance of living through an atom bomb war. One civil defense official said it might be two years, maybe more, after Congress acts.

The National Security Resources Board (NSRB) put the plan together in a 162-page progressive best seller called "United States Civil Defense."

With the publication of the master plan, there were two related developments.

Paul J. Larsen, who directed its preparation, resigned as head of the NSRB's defense office. Deputy James J. Wadsworth was named acting director. A former atomic energy expert, Larsen said that in the operating stage civil defense needs someone with a broader administrative and organizing background than he has. He said he has no special plans for the future.

Forfeit Bonds In Police Court

Henry Cage, 709 North Moniteau avenue, failed to appear in court this morning and his $5.00 cash bond for running a stop sign at Pettis and Moniteau avenue, was ordered forfeited by Judge Jerry Trotter.

W. S. Darrah, Warrensburg, Mo., charged with careless driving at the Garst's Drive In, failed to appear and his cash bond of $25.00 was forfeited.

Thirteen overtime parkers who also failed to appear in police court forfeited their cash bonds of $1.00 each.

Edwin Fowler Is Recovering From Injuries

Edwin Fowler, 1201 East Sixteenth street, was injured a week ago Friday in an automobile accident just as he was going into Bellair on state highway number 5.

Mr. Fowler was en route to Columbia to visit his daughter, Mrs. John Corley and Mr. Corley. He received a fracture of his left arm and injuries to his legs. He is now at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roy Eirle, 1205 East Fourteenth street.

Liberation of Seoul Appears at Hand by Advancing Allies

Han's rail and road bridges then, Allied planes repeatedly mangled the bridge remnants.

As the big offensive mounted at both ends of South Korea, allied warplanes showered the Reds with 3,000,000 leaflets, warning them they must give up or die now.

On the old Southeast Korean beachhead, an American battalion crossed the Nakdong river and set up a firm bridgehead on the west bank.

Allied forces had withdrawn to the east bank Aug. 4.

U. S. second division troops made the crossing west of Changnyong. The Reds drove back three U. S. patrols which tried to cross at another point.

On the northeastern front of the old beachhead, two Allied battalions crossed to the north bank of the Kyongsan river. The river runs just south of Pohang port on the east coast.

Progress in Stiff Resistance

Allied forces mostly made steady progress all along the 12-mile southeast perimeter. But the Reds resisted fiercely at several points.

There were indications the Reds—caught in the Allied nutcracker—were pulling forces from the southeast to defend Seoul. AP Correspondent Reiman Morin, in the Inchon-Seoul beachhead, reported evidences of suicidal resistance by surprisingly weak and wild-eyed Red forces.

Allied fliers spotted a fast Red motorized column racing north from Taejon, 90 miles south of Seoul. Warplanes blasted the moving Communist troop column. The Navy in Washington reported Marine pilots now are able to fly off carriers and land at Kimpo.

The Navy said belated reports from the Inchon-Seoul sector said 17 Russian-made tanks were destroyed by Marine ground weapons and 18 others were knocked out by navy and marine carrier planes.

Allied planes ranged all over the two fronts.

Carried-based Navy and Marine planes hit Red airfields within 150 miles of the Inchon beachhead.

U. S. fifth air force fighter-bombers spewled jellied gasoline and fire bombs at Red troops on the Southeast Korea perimeter.

B-29s hit Red positions in the Waegwan sector northwest of Taejon with 400 tons of bombs. They plastered an area one-half mile wide and two and one-half miles deep.

This could be the prelude to another jump across the Nakdong. The two jaws of the mighty nutcracker were beginning to ram shut on the Communists.

On the second front beachhead before Seoul, the 10th corps commander, Maj. Gen. Edward H. Almond exclaimed: "It's going like a million dollars."

Almond said the Reds defending Seoul were without heavy artillery, but had some mortars.

The Marine column driving along the main Inchon-Seoul road fought against "stubborn but disorganized" resistance.

"It has been necessary to go through each village routing snipers," Almond said.

Endeavor to Find Trace of a Sister

Sedalia police have received a request to try and locate Emma Jane Allen, a resident or former resident of Sedalia. It was made by a sister, Mrs. Kermit Shirk, Davenport, Iowa.

The woman was born in Sedalia in 1906 and her mother died at her birth. Her parents were Thomas M. and Jane Allen. She was taken by a family to raise, but the sister did not have the name of the foster parents. The father has since died.

Three brothers also have died and there are only five sisters, four of whom hope to contact the fifth.

According to the letter Emma Jane was sick and it was advised by the doctor to let the family take her. The family failed to let the father know about his daughter and all trace of them has been lost according to Mrs. Shirk.

Any information regarding the woman is requested to be given the local police so they can notify Mrs. Shirk.

Balanced Farming Week, Sept. 18-23

Campaign Is Planned By 4-H Council

Fall Enrollment Be Held To Add More In Work

The Pettis County 4-H Council met for its regular quarterly meeting on Tuesday night, September 12th with the main business of the evening making plans for the fall 4-H enrollment campaign. The council noted that out of 1500 rural youth in Pettis County only approximately 600 are enrolled in club work. In order to more fully reach the 900 boys and girls not yet in club work the council recommended that all Pettis County 4-H clubs make a special drive for enlistments. This enrollment campaign should start in the communities where active clubs are now functioning and spread to the areas not yet reached by 4-H. In addition the council recommended a program of new club organization and sponsorship by the larger, more established clubs as another means of reaching these communities without club work.

In order that council members might more fully comprehend the areas covered by club work and the areas without 4-H, maps of the county showing the location and boundaries of the 36 community 4-H clubs were distributed. These maps were studied by the council members as a means of getting a fuller picture of the areas where present clubs might expand and where new clubs might be organized.

Four Point Program
A four point program for enrolling new members and organizing new clubs as presented by the executive committee, was adopted by the council and recommended as a guide for clubs to follow in their enlistment campaign. This program, as outlined by the executive committee is as follows: All clubs make a survey to determine the number of rural youth of 4-H age in their community not presently enrolled in club work—Junior club leaders go out in teams to visit families included in this survey, explain the purpose and place of club work in rural Pettis County and inviting these families to be guests of their club as one of their regular meeting—in areas where enough interest is indicated to justify a new club these junior leaders will be responsible for making the necessary arrangements for calling an organizational meeting and are to assist the agents in organizing the new club. Parent clubs are to be the sponsor of these new clubs until they are strong enough to function by themselves.

New Clubs Aim
It is hoped that this method of enlisting new members will result in a growth in size of present clubs and will also bring about the organization of at least 6 new clubs in the county this coming year.

Plan Achievement Week
The council also make plans for National 4-H Achievement Week, November 4-12 by voting to sponsor window displays depicting the 4-H story in stores and schools over the county. Other council business included announcement of the forthcoming State Contest Day on September 29, a discussion on the National 4-H awards program and a recommendation that leaders encourage older members to participate in this program, an explanation of the Rotary Gilt Project, an announcement of the forthcoming National Fire Prevention Week and the distribution of posters to be placed over the county during this week, and a discussion on how 4-H clubs could participate in United Nations Week in October. The council recommended that 4-H clubs make U. N. Flags and display them during the week of October 22-28. The pattern for these flags can be secured from the extension office.

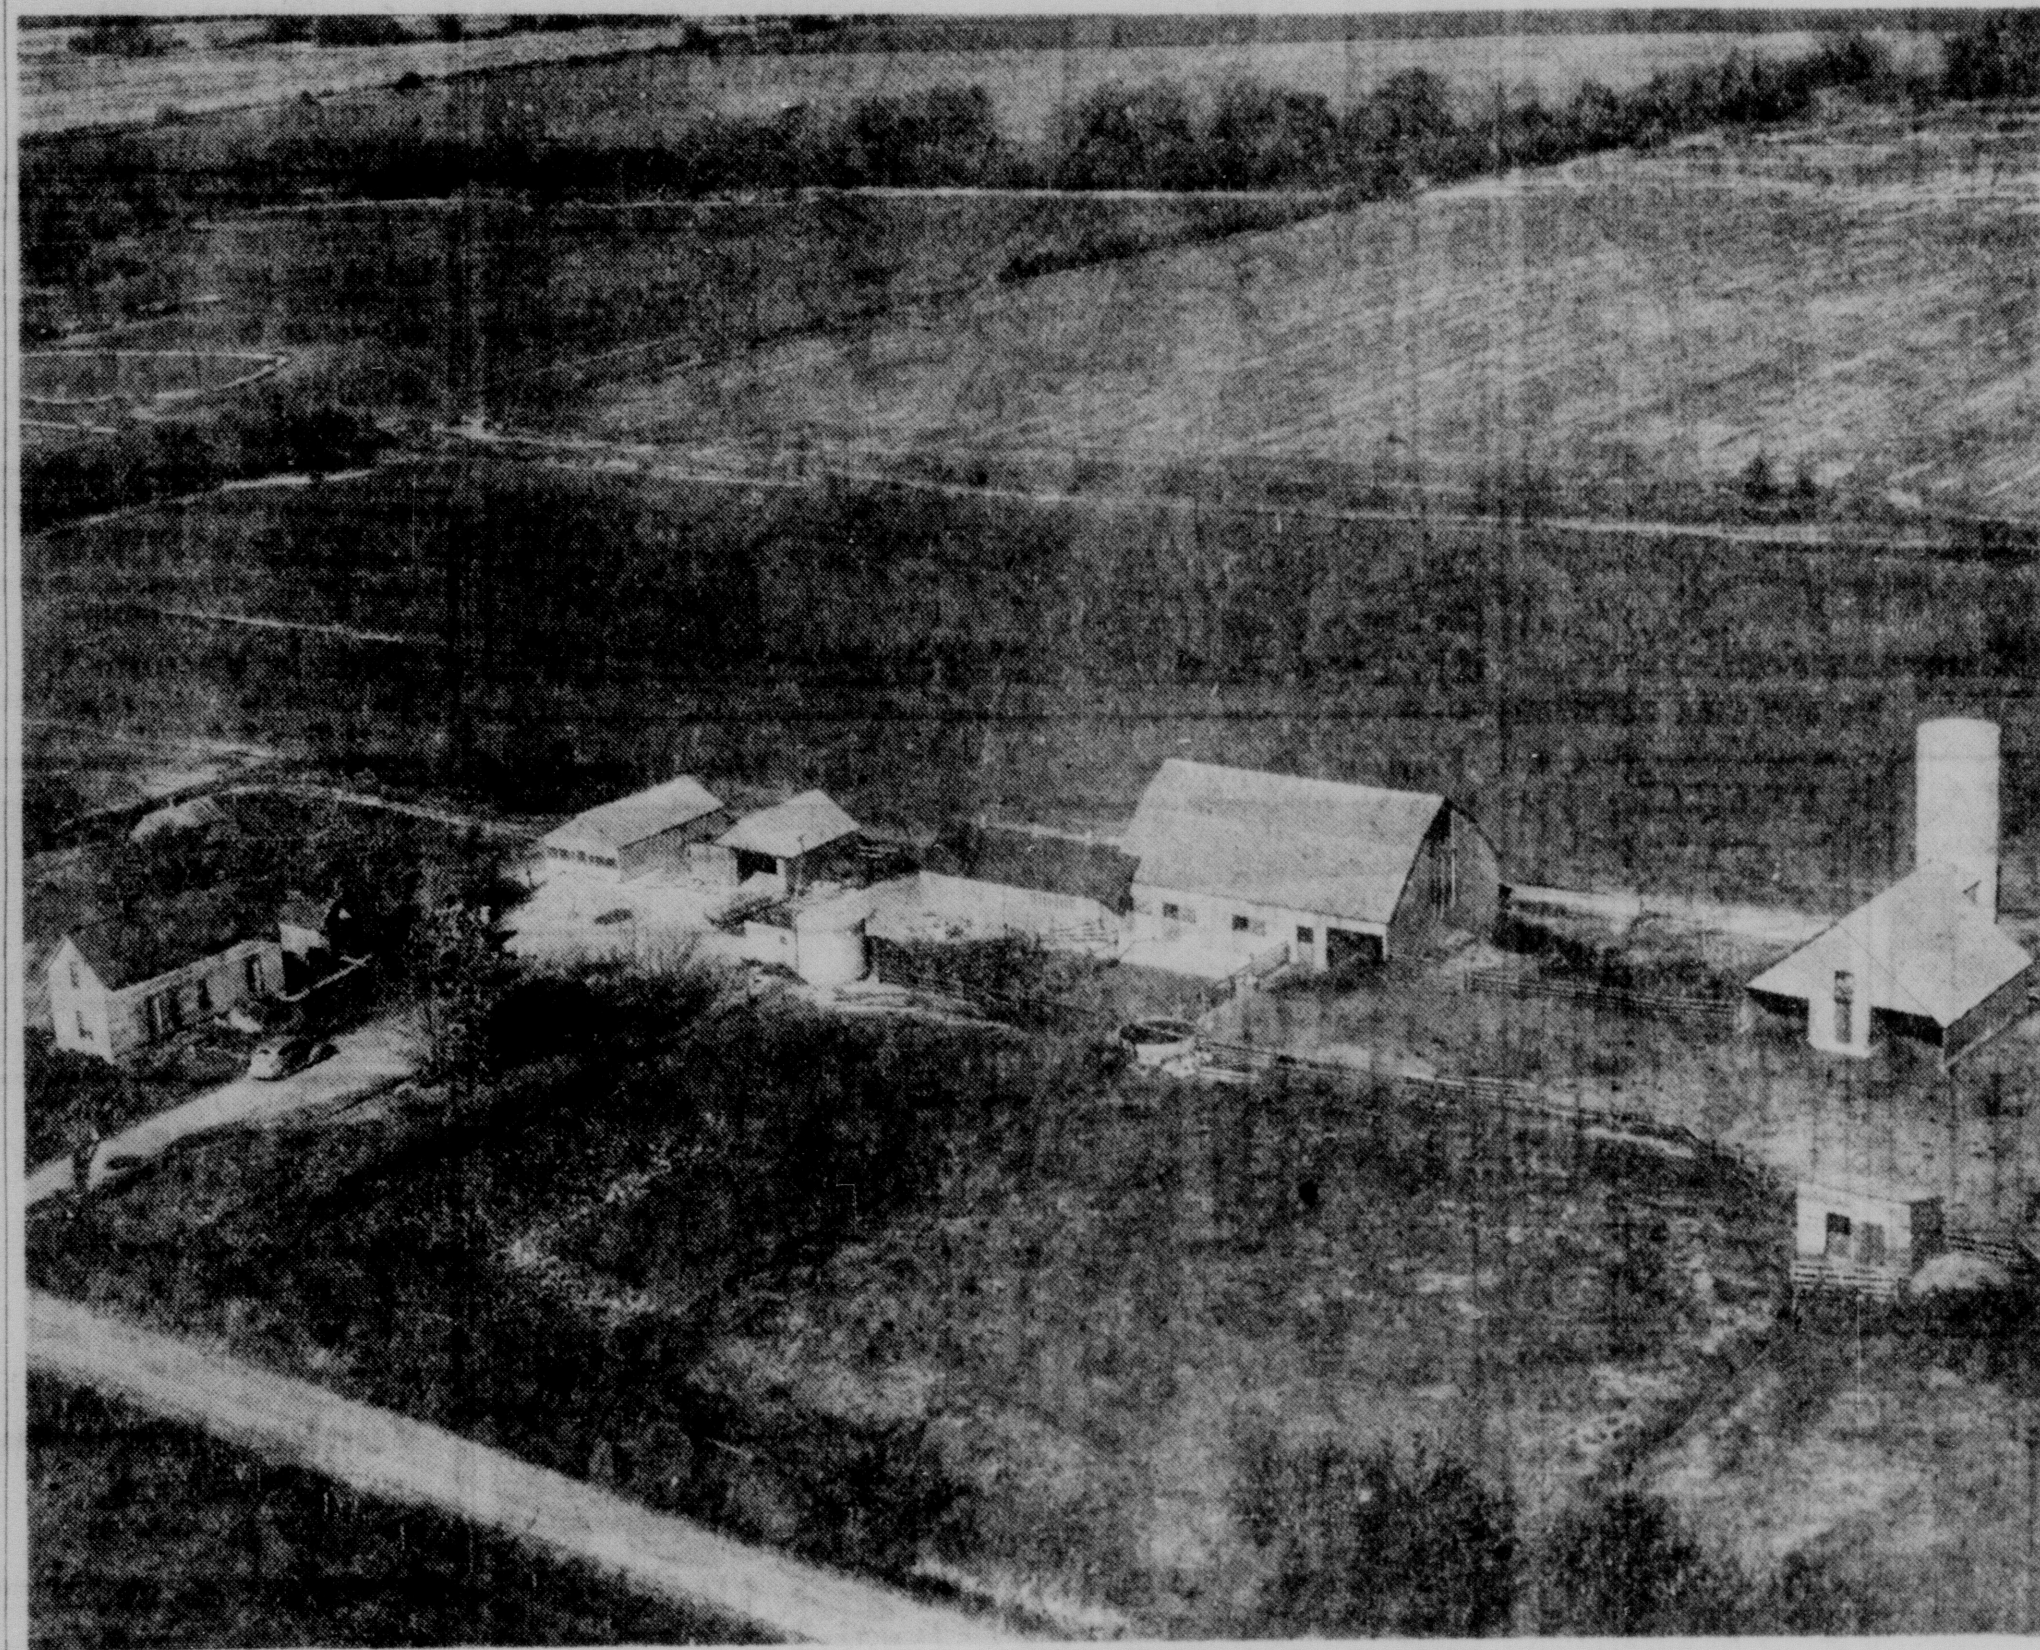

The council program closed with an electricity demonstration by Miss Anna Lee Harvey of the Walnut Grove 4-H Club.

W. J. Lamm Gives Credit

"The Balanced Farming Association has given me valuable assistance in my farming activities," says W. J. Lamm of Smithton. "Through the assistance of the association I have planned and put into operation an erosion control system that is fundamental to the whole soil improvement program on my farm. To plan a whole overall system so that we can conveniently enter each field takes much thought and planning."

Mr. Lamm gives much credit to the help he has received through the association not only on the erosion control practices but on other phases of good farming and enjoyable living on a farm. He

Farm Bureau Head Is Pleased

"I am well pleased with our program for the economical production of hogs. We have three fields about the same size fenced hog tight, terraced and below a pond where we grow our pigs. On one of these fields we have corn. On another we have small grain and clover and on the third we have clover. We put our fall pigs on the first year clover and our spring pigs in the same field now second year clover. The following year this field is plowed and planted to corn followed the next year by small grain and clover. This gives us 24 months to kill parasites to be ready for pigs again," says Charles Arnold, president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau. "We have these three fields terraced and planned so that the fifth from one area is not carried by water to another, i.e., the division fence is on the terrace. From the pond we pipe water to all three fields. This program saves labor and feed and gives a lot of satisfaction." "We received a lot of help from the Balanced Farming Association of the pond & planning the 3 field layouts." "We have a water management plan for the 160 acre farm. It's about half terraced, more to be done soon. Our first terraces were run the wrong way and we had no plan calling for convenient farming. Some day we will perhaps reverse these." "Both Mrs. Arnold and I are mighty proud of some changes we have made in our home. We have water piped into and from the house and a septic tank. We are looking forward to other improvements in our home. Any one of these three phases of balanced farming is worth the price of the membership fee."

wards. I now have a long time plan for my farm whereas before joining the Association I was farming on a year to year basis." "The Association helped me plan the rearrangement of my fields for more efficient farming. We will have 8 fields of about 20 acres in each and all readily accessible from the farm buildings. We have also planned a hog pasture sanitation program by having three small fields of about the same size where we will raise our pigs. These will be 24 months time elapsing between the time pigs come off of one of these fields before other pigs are put on. This will give nature plus our plowing and cultivating an opportunity to kill nearly all the hog parasites that cause hog losses."

Mr. Sawford also says he has definite plans now for getting some of the things done in good soil building program. He concludes his endorsement by saying "The money invested in my membership fee is paying big dividends."

Highly Pleased On Soil Saving

"I have quit worrying about my concrete Missouri Soil Saving Dam washing out," says Sherman Pritchard, in the southern part of Pettis county. This is a structure that was built while Mr. Pritchard was a member of the Balanced Farming Association. It was designed to handle 65 acres of water.

Mr. Pritchard was asked why he joined the association. He said, "I just wasn't able to figure out a good water management plan by my self and I needed help

Progress Made In Balanced Farming Here

Associate Agent To Help Bring Better Results

Pettis County farm leaders in the early '40's realized that many benefits could come to individual farmers by tying in all the better practices applicable to one farm into a Balanced Farming Program. It was realized that many changes were necessary on most farms to secure the benefits that might accrue to those putting all the improved practices into operation. These leaders soon learned that a trained person was needed to help those who wanted to make rapid progress along this line.

In 1946 Pettis County leaders took a progressive step and employed an Associate Extension Agent who was to assist those interested to work out and develop a plan of improved operations known as "Balanced Farming". For 1946 and 1947 his services were free for the asking and assistance of a material nature was given to farmers.

The extra finances needed to employ the associate agent came from two sources, the University of Missouri Extension Service and locally. After these two years time the State Extension Service, because of lack of sufficient finances, was unable to continue on this basis. Hence to raise the necessary finances for the employment of the Associate Agent and to pay his necessary travel and clerical expenses, an association was formed to raise the local funds. In 1948, 50 farmers put in $50.00 each and the merchants, bankers, and others contributed $1250. The value to the individual farmer was so great it was decided by the Farm Bureau which sponsors Extension Work to raise the membership fees to $75.00 and to discontinue the subscription of $1250 from other sources.

This program was continued for 1949 and up to the present time in 1950.

For several months the committee has been discussing how to carry on the program in 1951. Repeatedly farmers have said, and the individual committee members have had this experience, that one year was not enough to get their plan worked out and to get the plan developed to such a point that they did not need the help of the Associate Agent. Hence the two years program was devised.

Read Mr. Prater's statement: "I had been bothered many years with neuritis pains in my legs—the pain was so bad I couldn't sleep at night. My appetite was way off, too! I just couldn't seem to get any enjoyment out of food and what I did eat didn't agree with me at all. I had just about given up hope when my brother and sister persuaded me to take HADACOL. What did HADACOL do for me? . . . Why, after taking HADACOL for only 2 weeks I was able to go back to work. You think I don't rate HADACOL First Place? . . . I recommend HADACOL every time."

Wonderful for Both Old and Young!

This new HADACOL is simply wonderful for men, women and children of all ages who are sick and ailing because their systems are lacking these important Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin.

The important Vitamins and Minerals in HADACOL come to you in special liquid form so that they are more quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood stream, ready to go right to work at once. HADACOL even builds up the red blood cells (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious elements to every part of your body—to your kidneys, lungs, heart, liver—even to the hair, nails and eyes!

Relieves Cause of Your Sickness from Such Deficiencies

HADACOL now makes it possible for you to relieve the active cause of neuritis pains and a general run-down nervous condition when due to deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin.

There Should Be No Doubt After reading Mr. Prater's wonderful experience with HADACOL—how can you doubt that this great product will help you if your system is lacking in Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin? What HADACOL did for Mr. Prater, it can do for you if you're suffering neuritis aches and pains, or other troubles due to such deficiencies.

So what are you waiting for? Don't continue to suffer—don't continue to be miserable!

Don't Be Satisfied With Symptomatic Relief!

HADACOL is not a quick-acting pill which gives symptomatic relief—rather it relieves the real cause of your pains and aches due to such deficiencies. And continued use of HADACOL helps prevent such agonizing pains from coming back. That's the kind of product you want—that's the kind you should buy and that's the kind you should start using NOW! HADACOL costs only $1.25 for a trial-size bottle. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. It is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. At any drugstore. Copyright 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation.

Russia Booms Fish Farms
MOSCOW—(AP)—Fish farming on a wide scale is being advocated here. It is stated that this branch of farming for those collective farms which have ponds or which can easily make ponds brings in big returns for the investment and labor necessary. Experiments are being made in raising caviar bearing fish—of the sturgeon family—in collective farm ponds. Fish farming of other types of fish is on a practical, not experimental, basis.

Jack Cooney Honored in Medford, Ore.

Giants Farm Rookie Voted Most Popular Player With 'Rogues'

Jack Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Cooney, Webster Groves, former Sedalia, has returned to his home from Medford, Oregon, where he has been playing baseball with one of the New York Giants farm clubs the past season. Cooney will enter Westminster college at Fulton this fall.

Signed in January
Cooney, who played Junior League baseball in Sedalia and continued his baseball playing after his parents moved to St. Louis, was signed by the New York Giants on his eighteenth birthday which was January 7, 1950. A first baseman, he was assigned to the Medford "Rogues" at Medford, Oregon.

This spring Cooney went to Sanford, Florida, where he attended the Giants spring training program after which he drew the "Rogues" assignment.

Cooney recently was declared a hero by his team. Playing in the last game with his team in the second division, a win would keep the team in the play-offs. (A loss would give Cooney a chance to get back to Missouri earlier.) Coming to bat, a fast ball was sent his way. Cooney was set and slammed a home run that won the game. (Cooney had to remain until last Saturday for the playoffs and then flew back home.)

Medford Tribune Story

According to a story which appeared in the Medford Tribune, Cooney has made a name for himself as a ball player in that place just the same as he did while playing in Sedalia and St. Louis which attracted the Giants to him.

Following is the story:

"Jack Cooney, St. Louis, Mo., youth, who is the star first baseman of the Medford Rogues baseball nine, walked off with the two big awards given on Friday night, players' appreciation night, at the fairgrounds ball park.

"Cooney was voted most popular player by Medford fans in a poll conducted over a period of weeks and won a wrist watch from Andy's Jewelry. He copied the honor by a wide margin, getting 3,461 votes. Lloyd Jones, pitcher and all-around utility man was second with 1,719 votes and received $25 from Harry Miller. Next highest ballot total for a Rogue was 369.

"Cooney was called forward a second time to receive the McKinney-English memorial trophy, presented by the Athletic Boosters club of southern Oregon. The award was in recognition of his being chosen as most valuable player on the Medford club. It was an honor bestowed by his teammates.

"With a .333 average, Cooney is batting leader among the lads who have been with the Rogues most of the season. That average was the official one as of August 21.

"Fans and players alike had a good time at the Friday tiff as there was a bit of joviality in the air. Catcher Tom Lloyd was presented a slot machine by a former Reno fan to remind him of his old days in the Nevada city.

Fans Contribute

"It was reported after the game that fans have contributed about $150 to a kitty to be divide among the players.

"One of the sidelights last night was the hunt conducted around home plate by Cooney, Rogue's president A. Z. "Tubby" Dean, Rogue's business manager Mel Carpenter and President Les Stamper of the Booster club. They sought the small bat that was missing from Cooney's trophy."

All America Tackle Called For Inquest

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 18—(P)—Wade Walker, Oklahoma's 1949 All America tackle, was under citation today to appear on Thursday in an inquest into a traffic fatality.

Patrolman W. D. Hines said Walker, now an assistant coach at North Carolina State college, was driver of the car which Saturday night struck and killed Arthur A. Alexander, 11, on a heavily traveled highway near here. Walker's home is at nearby Gastonia.

Rumors Persist That Browns Will Move

St. Louis Club in Recent Games Going Strong

By Ralph Roden

A move was reported underfoot in the American League today to move the St. Louis Browns to Timbucuro.

For years rumors have persisted that the Browns would be shifted from the banks of the Mississippi to Baltimore, Los Angeles or other points but now those cities are considered too close—at least for the comfort of some rivals. Reading from left to right, these may be identified as: Cleveland, Boston and New York.

The Browns, a doormat for the greater part of the season, have suddenly grown ferocious, playing like champs instead of chumps.

Cleveland was the first to meet disaster at the hands of the "new Browns." The St. Louis club knocked the Indians out of contention with four straight victories in Cleveland.

The Red Sox and Yankees were next on the list. The Browns took two out of three from Boston's third-place Sox and followed by splitting a doubleheader with the league-leading Yankees yesterday.

They knocked the Yanks off, 6-5, in the first game and battled the Bombers tooth and nail until the last inning of the second before capitulating, 6-1. At that, it took a grand-slam, pinch-hit homer by 34-year-old Johnny Hopp to beat them in the ninth. Despite the split the Yankees moved a game ahead of the second-place Tigers who lost a 3-2 squeaker to the Red Sox in Detroit.

Here's the picture at a glance:

W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
New York	90	52	634	—
Detroit	88	52	629	1
Boston	88	53	624	1 1/2

"The Browns' biggest crowd of the season, 21,082, showed up at Sportsman's park and saw rookie Ken Wood double home Owen Friend in the ninth inning to win the opener.

The nightcap was a mound duel between Allie Reynolds of the Yanks and Al Widmar.

The Philadelphia Athletics edged the Cleveland Indians, 10-9, in 11 innings and the Washington Senators and Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader. The White Sox won the opener, 4-0, behind Bill Wight and the Senators captured the nightcap, 3-2, on Irv Noren's ninth-inning homer.

The Philadelphia Phils continued to move along in the National League, beating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3. The league leaders scored all of their runs in the fifth inning, three on a homer by Gran Hamner who was honored before the game.

Boston took over second place from the Brooklyn Dodgers by sweeping a doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds, 6-2 and 3-1, while the Dodgers lost a 3-2 decision to the Chicago Cubs on Wayne Terwilliger's two-run homer.

Warren Spahn became the National's first 20-game winner by stopping the Reds on six hits in the opener.

The New York Giants scored three runs in the last of the ninth inning to shade the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-6. Pinch-hitter Jack Lohrke singled home Bobby Thomson from third with the payoff counter.

Sikes Rates Tigers Ahead In Big Seven

Hoag as K. U. Back Shows up In Fine Form

By Skipper Patrick

LAWRENCE, Kas., Sept. 18—(P)—The University of Kansas' 1950 football rewards could easily depend upon a sophomore back and the Jayhawks' first opponent.

The sophomore, a sparkler as a freshman and brilliant in pre-season practice, is Kansas' 190-pound Charlie Hoag from Otak Park, Ill.

The first opponent is Texas Christian university, a team Kansas has twice tied but never beaten in seven meetings. The game will be at Lawrence Saturday.

If Hoag lives up to expectations and TCU does not strike a demoralizing blow, Kansas could easily be a surprise of the season—maybe contend strongly for the Big Seven title.

Hoag isn't the only potentially fine sophomore in the Jayhawk flock, there are talented veterans, too, but seldom has a rookie come into the Big Seven conference with such a build-up.

Jules Sikes, the soft-speaking Kansas coach, figures the Hawks "might win six games if Hoag and some of the other sophomores come through." He hedges by saying, "and if we play real good ball."

Just a Scuffle Among Players

DETROIT, Sept. 18—(P)—Ordinarily a baseball manager gets pretty upset when his ball players start scrapping among themselves.

But Detroit Tiger manager Red Rolfe was far from unhappy yesterday when Coach Dick Bartel and rookie catcher Frank House got into a scuffle during batting practice before the Red Sox game.

No blows were struck during the brief push-and-pull affair as Rolfe and second baseman Gerry Priddy rushed in to break up the argument.

"It may do some good to see a little fight on the club. I only wish they'd show it against the opposition," said Rolfe with a wry smile.

He described the scuffle as "just one of those things that happens when a team is under pressure." Neither player was disciplined for the brief melee, although Rolfe gave them a little lecture.

Witnesses said House got a headlock on Bartel and wrestled him around a little before they were pulled apart. House blamed the incident on Bartel's "needing." The Tiger coach termed it a "misunderstanding."

Missouri College Football This Week

By The Associated Press
Missouri colleges complete their first round of football openers this week. The teams are off to a fine start.

Friday night, Maryville's Bearcats will take on the strong Fort Hays (Kas) Tigers at Maryville. The Bearcats tripped the Missouri University "B" team, 13-0, last week. Kirksville, which won its opener with Culver-Stockton, 37 to 0, meets Missouri Valley at Marshall. Springfield meets Tahlequah (Okla.) State away from home.

Two other MIAA teams will play Saturday. Rolla's Miners tangle with Washington in St. Louis, and Cape Girardeau will be at James Millikin (Decatur, Illinois).

The MCAU slate: Thursday—William Jewell vs. St. Benedict's at Kansas City. Culver-Stockton vs. Carthage at Canton.

Friday—Central at Ottawa (Kas.), Tarkio at Dana (Neb.). The Springfield Bears played well but lost their opener, 21-13 to Arkansas State at Conway last Saturday night.

The Kirksville-Missouri Valley game should be one of the more interesting of the week. Coach Volney Ashford's Vikings humbled College of Emporia, 48-0, last Friday and appear to be in good position to capture their seventh straight MCAU title.

New Plan on Series Tickets

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18—(P)—The Philadelphia Phillies, their first pennant in 35 years virtually in their grasp, today announced a precedent-shattering plan for distribution and sale of World Series tickets.

Bob Carpenter, president of the National league club, said that single game tickets will be sold and each applicant will be limited to just two of these.

"That way," Carpenter explained, "we'll be giving 92,000 fans an opportunity to see the World Series instead of 23,000. His figure, he explained, was based on a seven-game series—four games of which would be played at the Phils' home park.

Major league pennant winners have always sold tickets in strips of three or four tickets.

"Our idea is to try and take care of as many of our fans as possible," said Carpenter.

The first two World Series games will be played in the home park of the National league pennant winner. The third, fourth and fifth games in the American league park and the sixth and seventh games, if necessary, in the National league stadium.

Teen-Age Blues Beat lackwater

The Teen-Age Blues thrilled the baseball fans Sunday in a game played at Housel Park with the Blackwater ball club, although losing the game 6 to 5. The Blackwater team was classed as one of the best semi-pro teams in this area.

The Teen-Agers scored first in the second on singles by Vaughn and Lees. Made it 2 to 0 in the third as Lane led off with a single forced at second on Watson's grounder. Watson stole second, and scored on Morgan's single to center.

Blackwater upset the cart when they scored one in the fifth and four in the sixth to take the lead 5 to 2. In the sixth the Blues tallied another after Morgan singled and Walters error accounted for the tally. Two more scores were made in the seventh to tie up the game as Lane walked, scored on Watson's single down right field foul line, Watson scoring on Morgan's third hit of the day.

The winning score for Blackwater was made in the eighth. Bill Arnold went to nine innings for the Blues allowing ten hits and struck out seven. Napper of Blackwater pitched for the visitors allowing nine hits and striking out twelve.

Morgan led the Blues hitting attack getting 3 for 3; Ashford for the Blackwater team getting 3 for 4.

The Blues starting lineup was: Lane ss, Watson 2b, Morgan 3b, Vaughn cf, W. Walter lf, J. Walter rf, Lees c, Fisher 1b, Arnold p.

Sedalia Flyers Lose to Moose

The Sedalia Moose Club baseball team defeated the Sedalia Flyers 13 to 6 on the Liberty Park diamond, Sunday afternoon. The two teams played after their opponents from other towns failed to make their appearance for games.

Two doubles and two singles out of five trips to the plate made Bob Babcock the leading hitter of the afternoon. Cooper led the Flyers hitting getting two hits out of three times at bat while Bud Michaels, of the Moose had the longest hit, a homer over the left field fence with two mates on base.

John Smethers pitched for the Moose with Jess Anderson on the receiving end while May and Spike pitched for the Flyers with McCoy on the catching end.

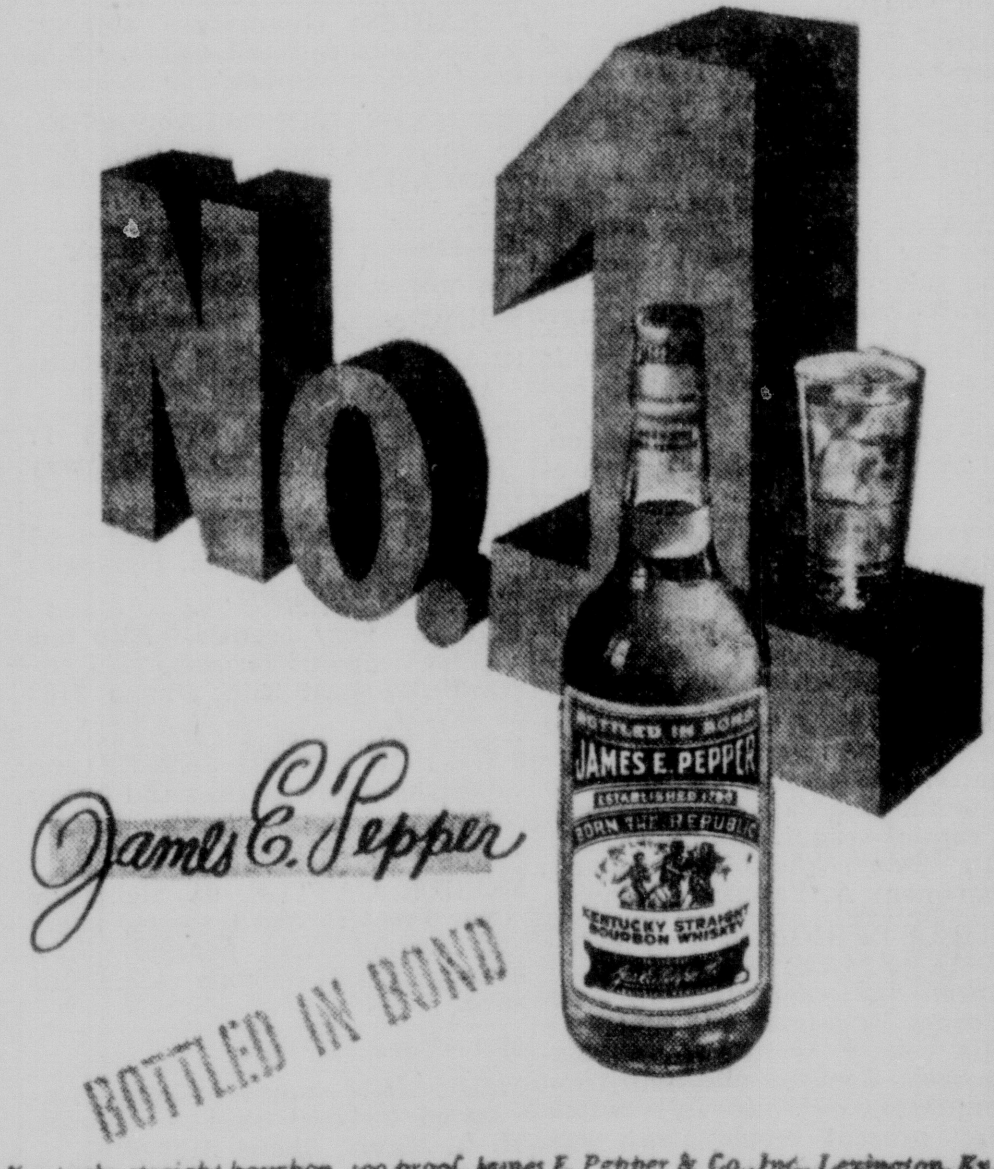

The Moose are scheduled at Housel Park next Sunday afternoon.

Red Clover Profitable As Pasture

George Hunter Finds It As Good In Hog Production

"The only thing I regret is that I did not begin any sooner," commented George Hunter, who lives 4 miles southwest of Sedalia, as he, Arthur Stanley, State Field Representative of Farmers Home Administration and Oscar H. DeWolf, County Supervisor, were admiring the 34 remaining spring pigs. Mr. Hunter went on to say that he was sure that if he had gotten around a little sooner this spring and had his sows farrow out on the red clover, instead of in the barn, he could have prevented some of the pig losses and gotten the pigs off to a better start.

There were six acres of 2nd year red clover on the Hunter farm this spring that was originally planned for a hay crop. Mr. Hunter said he had learned, in his veteran-on-job agriculture class that using red clover pasture was a profitable practice in hog production and decided to fence off three acres for his hogs. By the time he decided to do this, he continued, time was getting pretty short and he did not get the fencing finished before his eight sows were to farrow and he had to fix up some farrowing quarters in the barn. From the eight sows he was able to save only 43 pigs, although they all farrowed good sized litters. By the time the pigs were two or three weeks old he said he got his fence finished and moved the sows and pigs out on the red clover.

Provided Protein

From then on, Mr. Hunter continued, the sows and pigs had all the corn and tankage they wanted to eat, but they did not eat so very much tankage, as they seemed to be getting a lot of the protein they needed from grazing on the red clover, and the pigs sure did grow fast.

When the pigs were a little more than five months old, he picked out nine of the heaviest and put them on the market. The nine averaged a little more than 190 pounds. Mr. Hunter expects to have the remaining on the market before they are quite six months old, and by the way they seem to be gaining, they should average some more than 200 pounds.

Not all of these spring pigs are going to market, as Mr. Hunter is looking forward to next year. He kept track of the gilts from the largest litters and from the sows that appeared to be the best mothers, and saved back six of the choice gilts. These were separated from the rest of the shoats when they were about four and a half months old, and put in a separate clover pasture. He restricted the amount of corn and added pulverized oats and continued with the tankage feeding.

As evidence the hogs had all the red clover pasture they wanted, is shown by the fact that with hogs running on the 3 acres of red clover, Mr. Hunter took off 200 bales of red clover hay, also, he only needed to feed 10, 100 pound sacks of tankage, which is a little less than one-half of the amount needed had he not had the red clover pasture. Although Mr. Hunter did not keep a record of the corn fed to the hogs, as other livestock was fed from the same crib, he said he was pretty certain the red clover pasture saved him considerable corn.

The fall pigs on the Hunter farm are being farrowed on red clover pasture and he has a new 3-acre field of red clover for his hog production in 1951.

High And Wide Terraces Better

As a part of his Balanced Farming program, W. J. Ficken says two things are outstanding in his mind. They are water management and pasture improvement.

He is proud of his plan of water management to control erosion with outlets out of the way at the far side of the fields. "I may have terraced without being a member of the Association but I would have an inferior job. I would not have built the terraces high enough. When I saw my finished terraces, I thought they were much too high. Now after widening them out and smoothing them up and their settling, they look different. I am convinced they should be about 18 inches high and plenty wide."

He reports he has improved his pasture system by using rye, sweet clover and more sudan then he did before he joined the Balanced Farming Association.

Multitudinous Goals To Reach By Balanced Farming

Some, but not all, of the goals in balanced farming, that the Association helps members achieve are given below.

Saving of labor on the farm is just as important as in any industry, factories, store, etc.

Saving of labor through balanced farming is achieved by:

1. More convenient arranged fields. In many cases this means larger and fewer fields.
2. Longer rows by eliminating ditches.
3. More feed being harvested by livestock through a good pasture program.
4. Use of modern labor saving device.
5. Less feed per pound of meat, milk, dozen eggs by modern methods.
6. Water piped from good ponds for livestock.
7. Suitable arrangements of buildings.
8. Cattle guards for much used gates.
9. Water in farm buildings.
10. More and easier production of high quality vegetables planted in wide spaced rows permitting power cultivation.

Increase Yields
Higher yields per acre and thus more net income results from:

1. Use of the kind and amount of fertilizer that will produce a bushel of grain or a ton of hay per acre or more pounds of meat, milk or wool.
2. Use of proper amounts of lime—enough to meet the need but not an amount that throws plant food out of balance.
3. Growing of legumes to provide more nitrogen and organic matter.
4. Using varieties of crops adapted to the farm and to the fields.
5. Using the proper amount and kind of permanent pasture mixture that will use to a good advantage the higher fertility of the soil.
6. A rotation of crops that will eliminate many of the hazards of disease and insects.
7. Erosion control that will prevent excessive loss of plant food.
8. Proper sequence of crops that will utilize the increased organic matter.
9. Proper technique of using crop insecticides and herbicides.
10. Proper mixtures of legumes in grass to provide the needed nitrogen.

Control of Erosion
Erosion control is essential to have a prosperous agriculture. Erosion is controlled by:

1. Terracing on most slopes with more than 1% slope.
2. Farming on the contour.
3. Growing a cover crop on the land as much as possible and practical.
4. Providing proper grass outlets.
5. Providing proper structures.
6. Using diversion terraces where needed.
7. Providing stilling basins when necessary.
8. Incorporating the maximum amount of organic matter in the soil.
9. Deep placement of fertilizer to stimulate deep root growth.
10. Increasing the organic matter of the soil.

Bring More Returns
Another goal of Balanced Farming is the increasing of returns per animal. This is achieved by:

1. Using sanitation measures.
2. Providing vitamins and minerals by pasture.
3. Balancing rations.
4. Using good breeding methods.
5. Culling out lower producing animals.
6. Selling products at correct time.
7. Keeping animals healthy.
8. Controlling parasites.
9. Controlling disease.
10. Keeping livestock comfortable.

Saving Labor
Saving labor in the home is an important goal of balanced farming to give more time for gracious living. Some of the ways to achieve these are:

1. Arranging kitchen equipment in a way to save steps.
2. Having working surfaces in kitchen at correct height.
3. Providing a utility room on ground floor.
4. Providing adequate storage in right place.
5. Having running water in and out of the house.
6. Having electric outlets where needed.
7. Having hot water.
8. Having a central light controlled by switch at entrance.
9. Providing dining area in the kitchen.
10. Having a central heating system.

Members of the Balanced Farm-

Helpful In Pond Location

"One of the many improvements I made through the Balanced Farming Association is digging a pond in a good location," says Norman Gibson of LaMonte.

"By careful surveying the Associate Agent and I made, we were able to find a spot south-east of the farm for a pond from which we could pipe water to the barn lot. This took careful planning. Had we gone much higher up the hill the area would have been too small to supply enough water for the pond. Had we placed the pond much lower gravity would not bring water to where I wanted it."

Mr. Gibson continued, "I built a concrete tank according to recommendation and piped water to it from the pond. This tank is south of a barn. This was done in the spring of 1949. Last fall I fed out 2 car loads of cattle. They did better than had my cattle previously. I am sure this was due to plenty of water that they could get when they wanted it. They made faster gains and made more gain per unit of feed."

"As a part of our Balanced Farming program we have two gardens which we use in alternate years. We have cut excess water of these gardens by terraces above them. The gardens are more convenient to the house than formerly."

"One tract of 160 acres we have terraced with outlets well located. An overall plan was worked out before we started our terracing program. We first built outlets at the boundaries of the farm away from the entrance to the fields from the center of operations. We can get to any field without crossing an outlet or terrace."

Mr. Gibson says, "Planning far enough ahead can speed up terracing by having fields divided on the contour."

"The investment we made in joining the Balanced Farming Association was a good one."

Goodwins Have Ample Water

Under Balanced Farming Have Pond For Cows

The Marvin Goodwins are well pleased with a number of their phases of their balanced farming program. One feature of balanced farming that should not be neglected is a water supply for the livestock.

A part of their balanced farm plan was the construction of a pond in a location that would provide water for the dairy cows grazing in adjacent fields. The assistance that the Goodwins received from the Association in the proper location of this pond was worth the membership fee in the association. Marvin says, "water convenient to the cows permitting them to get a drink when they want it without a long walk increase milk production and reduce feed cost."

Marvin says he could not visualize a good water management plan of erosion control in the beginning and was helpless in his efforts to work out a plan. After a plan was worked out on his farm he said he needed encouragement to keep him going on.

With all these good features of his program he has another one that is paying off. Marvin was persuaded to set up a plan whereby he could produce pork cheaper. He now has this plan in gear and it is paying off. Three 7 acre fields are used to provide a clean ground pasture program. He put 1949 fall pigs on spring seeded red clover where no hogs had been on recently. These fall pigs weighed 226 lbs at 5 1/2 months of age. On August 31 this year his spring pigs averaged 200 lbs at 5 months of age. Five sows and 34 spring pigs ate 318 bushels of corn and 1550 lbs. of supplement. This means a little less than 5 bushels of corn and less than 24 lbs. protein supplement plus pasture.

Smith-Cotton High School in Sedalia. His major 4-H project work has been along the line of farm power machinery maintenance and junior leadership. In 1949 he was a delegate to Missouri Boy's State and also a Pettis County delegate to the Missouri 4-H Club Week.

Cecil plans on entering the University of Missouri College of Agriculture this month to major in Agricultural Engineering. He has been interested in this field for several years and has prepared himself by doing much work on his 4-H farm machinery project.

Good Results By Rotation

"Since starting in a balanced farming system I have been able to plan and put into effect a crop rotation and a pasture system that is giving me a balance between forage, pasture, and grain for my dairy cattle." So says Olen Monsees former president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau and now serving on the Board of Directors of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation.

Mr. Monsees is proud of his pasture that he renovated as a part of his farm plan developed through the association. "Although it sounds unbelievable," he says, "my renovated pasture has more than doubled its carrying capacity. In the middle of April, 14 yearling heifers were turned in on 7 acres of renovated pasture consisting of Bromegrass, ladino clover, timothy and alfalfa. This mixture was seeded according to the recommendation of the Balanced Farming Association. These 14 heifers could not keep down the growth so 26 head of dairy cows were turned in this ture in producing 100 pounds of pork.

Of course this involved carefully planning to get these areas set up to prevent cross drainage and to get water to the hogs at all times. The fencing on the contour required careful work, but he says it's paying off.

The Goodwins are strong boosters for the association.

Given Start In Improved Plan

"While in the Balanced Farming Association, I saw the need for soil testing and crop rotation, get started off on a two year rotation of small grain and sweet clover with the sweet clover turned under in May for corn. This one change in my program already has been worth more than my membership fee in the association." This is a statement of Claude Finley of LaMonte.

"I also," continued Mr. Finley, "wanted to improve my poultry operations. I needed a better poultry house to make poultry a big enough enterprise to insure a high labor income. I was uncertain how to proceed. By being a member of the association I received special help in getting an old house remodeled and an addition to it. I now have a feed room, water supply, straw loft, open front and community nests. I have 1600 square feet in the house I built last year and in the remodeled one. In these we house 545 pullets and secure good production. I have a much better house than I would have had without this assistance."

"I learned the importance of clean ground for my young stock. I had clean ground in 1949 and again this year. I built 2 range shelters last year and 2 more this year. I like them and recommend them to all. A neighbor built one after seeing mine. I raised 800 pullets this year, 160 cockerels, 200 meat birds and am now raising 1000 broilers."

Pastures To Fill In The Gap

The pasture phase of balanced farming deserves no minor consideration. Luxuriant pasture, loaded with vitamins and minerals, in ample but not wasteful quantities offers an attractive and profitable program. The farmer who has no spring pasture in April must provide an extra amount of hay silage or grain.

Rye or sweet clover grown in connection with small grains harvested for grain or pastured out fills this gap. Permanent pasture other than blue grass may be used to some extent in April.

Also the farmer that fails to have some lespedeza in July and August on his cropland usually finds himself in a poor position for pasture during this period. The dairyman also usually needs some Sudan unless he has some good grass such as Brome. Few farmers can afford to be without some spring seeded sweet clover for September and fall pasture. This field can then be pastured in the spring and planted to corn. Arranging the fields and determining the acreage of pasture for each of the months from April, May, June, July, August, September, October and November, so that there will be ample pasture with some reserve and little waste is not too easy, requires careful planning and execution. This is one phase of balanced farming that the association considers.
